

Don't Read This

editorial if you are a confirmed "litterbug." It will only serve to remind you of the several times a beer can or a scrap of paper has been left at Bittersweet or on Chipman Hill.

This is somewhat of an annual feature in this column but it seems that some people need a general nudge. We do not believe it is asking too much of people to pick up the debris after a picnic.

There are probably a good number of students who use both public and private land for spring activities. We imagine that most accept the responsibility of cleaning up after themselves.

So, this reminder is directed to those who unwittingly leave behind them a trail of rubbish. In the next few weeks why not make the effort to erase the trail and keep the countryside clear for the rest who use it.
